```
import pandas as pd
import numpy as np
import matplotlib.pyplot as plt
from scipy import stats
from scipy.stats import skew, kurtosis, mode #Python libraries for interferential statistics import seaborn as sns #This is for generating Histogram with Ker
```

```
df = pd.read_csv('hotel_books.csv')
df.head(5)
```

```
   day  clients  total_bill
0    1       33       23958
1    2       25       26812
2    3        5       24871
3    4       17       17954
4    5       28       29416
```

Next steps: Generate code with df | View recommended plots | New interactive sheet

```
df.dtypes
```

```
                0
       day      int64
   clients      int64
total_bill      int64

dtype: object
```

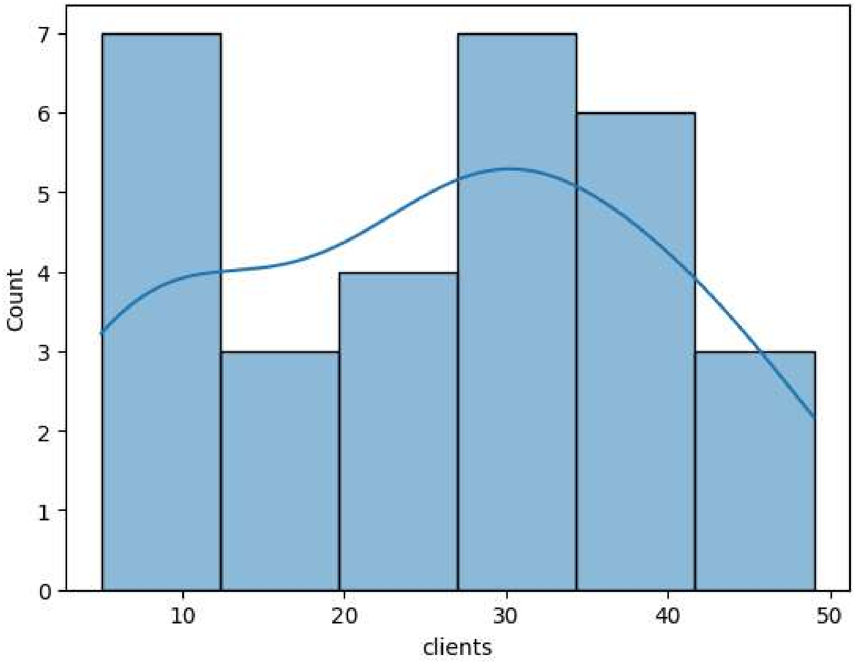
```
df.isnull().sum()
```

```
            0
       day  0
   clients  0
total_bill  0

dtype: int64
```

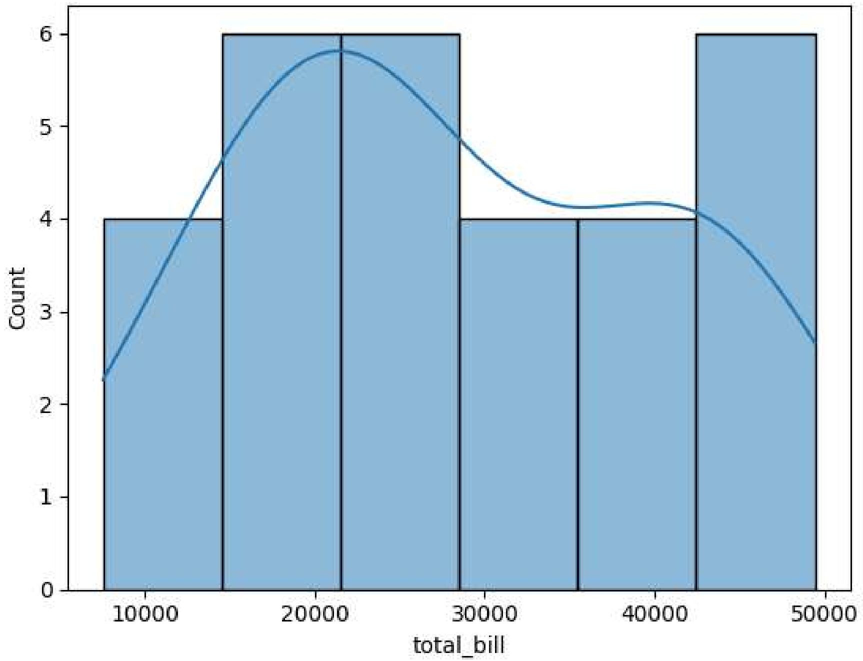
```
sns.histplot(df['clients'], kde=True)
```

```
<Axes: xlabel='clients', ylabel='Count'>
```



```
sns.histplot(df['total_bill'], kde=True)
```

```
<Axes: xlabel='total_bill', ylabel='Count'>
```



```
skew1 = df['clients'].skew() kurt1 = df['clients'].kurt() print(f'Kurtosis for the number of hotel clients in a day:{kurt1}') print(f'Skewness for the number of hotel clients in a day:{skew1}')
```

```
Kurtosis for the number of hotel clients in a day:-1.1388703400867874
Skewness for the number of hotel clients in a day:-0.05968808896371035
```

```
skew2 = df['total_bill'].skew() kurt2 = df['total_bill'].kurt() print(f'Kurtosis for the total bill collected from clients per day:{kurt2}')
print(f'Skewness for the total bill collected from clients per day:{skew2}')
```

```
Kurtosis for the total bill collected from clients per day:-1.130219880444574
Skewness for the total bill collected from clients per day:0.18976914965853053
```

```
df.describe()
```

	day	clients	total_bill
count	30.000000	30.000000	30.000000
mean	15.500000	25.666667	28344.233333
std	8.803408	13.557879	12441.769892
min	1.000000	5.000000	7534.000000
25%	8.250000	16.000000	18335.000000
50%	15.500000	28.000000	25841.500000

```
stats.mode(df['clients'])
```

```
ModeResult(mode=8, count=4)
```

```
stats.mode(df['total_bill'])
```

```
ModeResult(mode=7534, count=1)
```

Start coding or generate with AI.